Situational Dialogues

At the hospital, a patient named Mr. Samnao and his assistant went in the doctor's office. Mr. Samnao has been suffering from back pains.

Nurse: Good morning, Doctor. You have a patient. Here's his record.

Doctor: Good morning, Mr. Samnao. What's the matter?

Mr. Samnao: I have been suffering from back pains since last week.

And I have a fever.

Doctor: I see. Your temperature is rather high. I'll try pressing your back.

How is it, now?

Mr. Samnao: That hurts.

Doctor: Have you taken any medicines?

Mr. Samnao: Yes, I have. Only aspirin for the pain.

Doctor: Okay, I'll prescribe antibiotics for you to take twice a day for 7 days and another medicine for fever. Come back for another check-up next week.

Mr. Samnao: Thank you, Doc!

Mr. Jaratkulangkun rushed to the hospital. At the hospital, he was attended to by a nurse at the information counter.

Mr. Jaratkulangkun: This is my first time in a hospital. I would like to have a patient's card.

Nurse: Please fill out your information on this form.

Mr. Jaratkulangkun: I'm nervous.

Nurse: Relax,sir. I'm just going to take your blood pressure.

Mr. Jaratkulangkun: Alright.

Nurse: Here's your patient's card. Please take a seat for a while and wait to be called.

Mr. Jaratkulangkun: Thank you!
